3. Capital Projects Status Report

Katharine Eggleston reported that GoTriangle is submitting a grant application for the Triangle Mobility Hub, to relocate the Regional Transit Center to RTP. Staff also is preparing for the groundbreaking for Raleigh Union Station bus facility. Staff is working to amend the development agreements for the RUS Bus project and a request has been submitted to Wake Transit for the additional funding.

Eggleston then informed the board that after conversations with partners about a potential grant application for regional passenger rail, it has been determined that a submission would not be made at this time. GoTriangle will participate in further conversation with partners about next steps for developing the framework for how an incremental, longer term vision would move forward.

Branch asked about preparations for a return to fares and if technology would allow for electronic payment. Eggleston responded that GoTriangle procured the technology for mobile ticketing – paying by phone or card - prior to the pandemic. She said the team is working to have that ready for expected reinstatement of fares on July 1, 2024. She added that GoTriangle is coordinating with other partners who may be considering returning to fares in order to coordinate the approach on technology and communications. The Operations & Finance Committee received a presentation this month on the work to develop a low income fare program. More information will be brought back in the next few months on a recommended framework for this program.

Vinson Hines responded that GoTriangle's current fareboxes are outdated and will need to be replaced. He said over half of the agency's operators have never used a farebox and will need to be trained. A new CAD/AVL system currently is being implemented as well. Parker asked the cost of updating the fareboxes. Vinson responded that is unknown at this time.

Lattuca noted that at this point, only Raleigh is considering returning to fares. Parker suggested a presentation to the board about the fare structure and technologies being considered.

B. General Counsel's Report

Byron Smith reported that GoTriangle was not successful in getting an increase to its vehicle rental tax in the legislative session. The roadblock is being fare free. Parker asked the revenue impact of a $2 increase. Freeman responded just over $2 million annually, but noted the possibly for an automatic adjustment for inflation every four years. Smith said he continues to meet with GoTriangle's lobbyist and members of the General Assembly.
